Virginia H. Dale is a Corporate Fellow in the Environmental Sciences Division at Oak Ridge National Laboratory (ORNL) and was selected as the 2006 Distinguished Scientist for the Laboratory. She is Director of ORNL's Center for Bioenergy Sustainability. She is also an adjunct professor at the University of Tennessee in the departments of both Forestry, Wildlife, and Fisheries and Ecology and Evolutionary Biology. She obtained her PhD in mathematical ecology from the University of Washington. Her primary research interests are environmental decision making, forest succession, land-use change, landscape ecology, ecological modeling, and sustainability of bioenergy systems. Dale has authored more than 190 published articles, is coauthor of the books Road Ecology and Hypoxia in the Northern Gulf of Mexico, and has edited five books. She has served on national scientific advisory boards for five federal agencies: Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), US Departments of Agriculture, Defense, Energy, and Interior. She recently chaired the EPA Science Advisory Board's Hypoxia Advisory Panel. She also served on the US National Research Council Committee of the Economic and Environmental Impacts of Increasing Biofuel Production. Dale is Editor-in-Chief of the journal Environmental Management.
